Long-awaited openings from top restaurateurs, the reincarnation of favorite spaces, and a female chef with Michelin cred are among the latest offerings out East this season.

Meanwhile, in Sag Harbor, the popular spot Dockside Bar & Grill is no more, and in its place at 26 Bay Street will be Sag Harbor Kitchen, from Melissa O'Donnell, whose New York restaurants SALT, Lil' Gem, and Thelma on Clinton earned Michelin Bib Gourmands. Reasonably priced, it will have something for everyone, including salad with a lighter version of green goddess dressing made using yogurt, roast chicken, mussels with arak and even a burger.

An exclusive partnership with Kittch offers personalized dining experiences including special events with international chefs, cooking classes and live streams from the kitchen. And in honor of Dockside's most famous dish, she will keep steamers on the menu.
